NORWICH, November 29.

The King of Spain, by his proclamation on the 23d of Auguſt, has declared War againſt the Emperor of Morocco; but the Sovereign of Morocco has been beforehand in declaring War againſt the Court of Spain. His declaration is dated the 3d day of the moon Ramadan, in the year of the Hegira 1170.

‖¶‖ On the appearance of a new paper, there are many careful ſouls, who, like the ſons of the prophets of old, are afraid that the place is too ſtrait for us: and that one little city cannot ſupport two little printers. To theſe, the Editor (after thanking them for their benevolence) would ſuggeſt,———that, by ſaving a few rags which are now thrown away, in the run of a year, they can afford to take both papers, thereby eaſe their own troubled minds, and enable both printers to bring up their families to be uſeful members of ſociety——There are others who wonder what benefit can be derived from having more preſſes and more papers——they have always took Mr. ———'s paper, and it furniſhes all the news and almoſt all the anecdotes. To theſe, the Editor would ſuggeſt in general terms; that to increaſe the number of preſſes is to increaſe knowledge, and to increaſe knowledge is to increaſe happineſs. If theſe are not given points, inſtead of having recourſe to the old hackneyed arguments on the ſubject, he would aſk, what cauſed the French revolution ſo much in favour of the common people, but the increaſe of knowledge? or why do the deſpots of Europe reſtrain the liberty of the preſs, but from a ſenſe that the increaſe of knowledge would endanger their heads; and thereby increaſe the happineſs of their vaſſals? or why are our brethren on the African coaſt ſo frequently kidnapped and kept in the moſt abject ſtate of ſervitude, but from a want of thoſe means of knowledge which might ſecure them againſt the barbarous inroads of thoſe who call themſelves chriſtians. If it is granted that the means of knowledge are a ſecurity of freedom and promotive of liberty, it muſt alſo be granted that an increaſe and continuation of thoſe means are neceſſary for the preſervation of that ſecurity.—— Further, the Editor does not intend this paper merely as a vehicle for the news of the day, or to ſet in the moſt conſpicuous light the vices of mankind, or to relate ſtrange ſtories about apparitions, hobgoblins, rawhead and bloody bones, and murders never committed, to the terror and diſquiet of children and fools; but alſo, to record and preſerve from oblivion, ſome of thoſe more valuable compoſitions which tend to make men more happy by increaſing their love to their neighbours, their country and their God. On theſe grounds he ſolicits the patronage of of his fellow-citizens, and the public in general: and while he conducts agreeable to his own propoſals he doubts not of meeting with the ſucceſs ſuch an arduous undertaking deſerves.

Thoſe who have in their hands, ſubſcriptions for this paper, are requeſted to forward them to this Office by the firſt opportunity.
